To date, we have painted 11 murals including a mural at last years Fraser Mountain Mural Walk. Collectively, we have been painting for almost two decades.

Please check your theme choice:

- Resiliency of the Human Spirit

Please describe your concept

Our concept involves the unseen elements that make up our experience and connectivity of these forces; "As above, so below, as within, so without, as the universe, so the soul..." Our work focuses on the ebb and flow of the currents of life and the ways in which we interact with them. We often juxtapose stoic figures with chaotic elements and vivid colors surrounding them. This explores the relationship between what we express outwardly and what we are experiencing internally. In this particular concept we are submitting, there is a woman in a moment of protection as the world around begins to envelope her and that which makes her resilient is made up of the same force in which she stands against. A paradox of the struggles we endure.

My most relevant experience would most likely be the creation of a walk-in sculpture, consisting of 24 panels of acrylic painted canvases. It was probably around 8 feet tall and 8 feet in diameter at its widest. I stretched and finished the canvases myself (would not recommend!), then painted the outside with regular acrylic paint and the inside with black light paint (the viewer could go inside and close the curtain to achieve the full effect.)

Other than that, I've always used paint as one of choices for personal expression, with acrylic and oil being the ones I use the most.

- Resiliency of the Human Spirit

Please describe your concept

My concept is slightly based on the idea of how Japanese pottery is fixed with gold, with the idea that the fixed piece is worth more than the original unbroken piece. It will be the silhouette of a woman, holding her own heart, which has been obviously broken and fixed with golden lines, and from her heart explode the moon and stars and bunches of flowers and a waterfall leading to a forest. The idea is that even though her heart has been broken, by love, or life, or just all the things that hurt people, she is still whole and beautiful and there's nothing that can remove her from her place in the universe.

Please describe your concept

Resiliency of the Human Spirit - Together We Rise

Together We Rise showcases human resiliency through a group of diverse individuals, of varied age and ethnicity, linking together to form a circle. They are surrounded by fire, which represents the challenges of our times. Half look out bravely towards the fire and the other half look above them towards the phoenix rising out of the ashes of the flames, which represents the resiliency of growing through challenge and becoming anew from death. The words circling the phoenix are "Together We Rise" reminding us that not only are we resilient in nature, but that we do best working together to resolve our problems.

As I read this I think of how people drink poison, inhale smoke, brake there skeletal frame inside there body and the body heals. In a way I would love to tie in a sperm cell in there some how, love those little swimmers, they really don't get enough credit. Basically racing and working so hard. Hell I bet there's even some swimmers that get distracted from the task and explore the tunnels, maybe sit back and take a brake, hhuuaaaa... Oh yeah, the concept. Yeah, would be rad to add in a little swimmer to the mix. And definitely guarantee there will be color and beautiful fading, along with clean and so so crisp lines. Hmmm. Yup

I started painting murals in my pants house as a kid and have continued to pain them throughout my career as an artist. I have been working primarily as a muralist in Denver for 15 years, with over 30 large public art projects to my credit. Lately I have been spending a lot more time in the studio producing abstract paintings and sculpture.

Please describe your concept

I want to design a mural for a specific wall that speaks to people from diverse backgrounds coming to gather for a common cause. I have always been passionate about the environment, however in recent years I have been much more aware of how this effects people on the racial and economic divide. The final design would depend on the wall selected, but would be similar to some of my previous work.

An abstracted forest with images of dark twisted roots, and decay at the bottom, gradually growing into vibrant color, light and living energy toward the top. A diverse range of imagery will be incorporated some representational other abstract.

I've been painting large scale and murals for just over a year. I've been a tattoo artist for 16 years and have worked with aerosol, oil, acrylic paints most of my life.

For the past year I've stayed busy being part of Various community projects painting murals along canal running paths.

Commercial buildings and local business murals and public art.

Painting Air bnb properties and private residential homes.

I've been painting large scale and murals for just over a year. I've been a tattoo artist for 16 years and have worked with aerosol, oil, acrylic paints most of my life.

For the past year I've stayed busy being part of Various community projects painting murals along canal running paths.

Commercial buildings and local business murals and public art.

Painting Air bnb properties and private residential homes.

- Resiliency of the Human Spirit

Please describe your concept

My concept I put together is a woman and a tree overlapping with heavy contrasting lighting.

The tree and woman in the design are alone but strong somewhat a part of each other changing and growing as seasons pass in vibrancy of light and dark

As an artist for 20 years, I have often turned to paint to work out ideas. I have worked on other artist murals a few times. Taught a class on scaling images for public work for junior high and high school students. I worked on the mural on the west side of Red Line in the Rino district of Denver and a few installations at my university MSU.

My best experience that I have is getting to live in Fraser and enjoy the land and all the beauty it has to offer. I am inspired and paint about the mountains around our home often.

I love the scale of the Fraser Mural canvas to bring one of my paintings to a larger size to inspire even more who visit this special valley. I am not a street artist, but with many years of experience in working with art on a public scale, this would be my first time creating something on my own and with a good cause in supporting the arts in my community. I am attaching a 5'x4' painting I have done to show I work on a large scale when I can, and the 8'x8' mural will be a good fit for my larger style.

Please describe your concept

As a community, we are in Fraser for the love of nature and the challenges it provides us. In every outdoor activity, Fraser provides there is a resilience of the human spirit that allows us to overcome those challenges no matter what they may be. To wake up in these mountains to a new day and a new passion to take on new challenges shows that the human spirit is strong here in Fraser. The mountains give us a home for our hearts and souls in nurture our spirit to become strong durable, giving, pliable and endearing!

My concept for the mural is to take aspects of the activities we do in the mountains and incorporate them into the landscape. These images become shadows cast on the mountains as our backdrop while embracing the nature that is all around us.

I'm taking a more contemporary approach to the mural by using a conceptual representation of the activities we enjoy in the mountains. The image comes together more like the Traditional quilting of patterns while creating a landscape. The subtle touches are what will draw the viewer in and speak to them on a personal level about their journey and their stay in Fraser.

In this painting, the Fraser River is an anchoring part of the landscape and the rise of the mountains with images of bike gears, ski poles and hikers footprints create the texture for this visual quilting of our valley. We challenge ourselves each time we step into this landscape, but it is the resiliency of the human spirit that keeps us reaching for more.

This interactive mural invites the viewer to step into the frame and become the Phoenix- a mythical fire-bird rising from smoke, ashes, embers, and destruction. In the spirit of social media and selfie culture, the purpose of this mural is to inspire viewers by allowing them to pose in front for a photo, taking on the wings of the bird, and rising above whatever is holding them down, or whatever destruction may have befallen their lives.

I've been a studio painter for 5 years, and I painted my first mural in March of 2019. It was for a salon in Gambrills, MD. It was done entirely with brushwork. Shortly after I was invited to Denver's 2019 Urban Arts Fund. That is the first time I used spray paint for a mural. I was invited back in 2020 but the pandemic caused the program to be dissolved. Thankfully, the community wanted me to come back independently to paint another mural in the same park. I worked with the district representative to allocate some funds from the budget. Due to this, I was able to come back in August of 2020 and paint my biggest wall yet. It was approximately 600 square feet. I also completed more indoor residential murals during 2020. Currently, I am doing a mural in downtown Loveland, CO. I worked with the business owners, VAC, and downtown Loveland to fund this project. It has been an amazing experience and my first time using and operating a scissor lift. This wall is approximately 480 square feet. I love painting on a large scale and I am excited to continue building my public art portfolio this season. Thank you for this opportunity.

Artist Submission 2021 : Entry # 428

My concept is inspired by the incredible resilience of BIPOC women and non-binary folks. It is one thing to survive in this life with one marginalized identity, to do it with multiple is a damn superpower. I understand this struggle as a Colombian-American woman. I was raised by an incredible immigrant woman who became a successful business owner and supported a family of 5 on one salary for most of my life. She showed me not what a woman should be but what one could be. My mother's resilience was a gift passed down to me. She got it through the generations of women of color that fought through a misogynistic and racist patriarchy every day. I have the opportunities I have today because of them. I want to honor them with this piece. Much of feminist history was one-sided. It was a fight for white women and BIPOC had no place in it. This leads me to why I am using the color red in this design. Red lipstick has for too long been a symbol of white feminism. When it should be an empowering symbol for all feminists. Instead, BIPOC women and non-binary folks were left entirely out of the beauty industry through the 1950s. Then they were told that it was sexual and too loud for them to wear. Meanwhile, white women were called elegant and classic for wearing bold red lipstick. It has only been in recent history that Latinx icons have started to reclaim this symbol as a type of powerplay. A couple of early examples of this are singers Selena Quintanilla and Celia Cruz. Even more recently Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez has been wearing red lipstick. Her being in politics surrounded by old white men makes for an even more potent statement. Bright red has also been used by women in Bolivia as a sign of protest, as well as by indigenous women to spread awareness about the high rates of missing and murdered indigenous women. In general, BIPOC folks are taking back this symbol and I want to celebrate that with this piece. The blood sweat and tears of our ancestors have gotten us here. I want this design to ooze quiet confidence and internal strength. One that can only grow inside someone through the collective resilience of their ancestors. I hope you see all of this in my piece. Thank you for the opportunity.

I wanted to create a piece that shows that even wildfires can't break our spirit here in Grand County through the use of animals. The bear means strength, and the rest of the animals depicted are those that we see throughout the valley. There are flames at the bottom representing the wildfires we endured last summer, but the bear will be coming through the flames representing grand county and how not even a natural disaster can keep our spirits down! If my design is chosen, I want to make the flames smaller towards the bottom of the canvas and the bear bigger as if he's actually stepping through the flames. Being a lifelong local and watching the place I call home change forever, I hold this topic close to my heart. I want to add a lot of color and make it pop and also tell a story at the same time. Nothing can break us, and this too shall pass.

The bear means strength, and the rest of the animals depicted are those that we see throughout the valley. There are flames at the bottom representing the wildfires we endured last summer, but the bear will be coming through the flames representing grand county and how not even a natural disaster can keep our spirits down! If my design is chosen, I want to make the flames smaller towards the bottom of the canvas and the bear bigger as if he's actually stepping through the flames. Being a lifelong local and watching the place I call home change forever, I hold this topic close to my heart. I want to add a lot of color and make it pop and also tell a story at the same time. Nothing can break us, and this too shall pass.
